Pro-COVID-19 vaccine fanatics who criticize or mock in public those who refuse the COVID injections continue to experience the principle found in the Bible that states “you reap what you sow” or what others refer to as “karma” as they are struck down dead or injured, sometimes in full view of the public.

TMZ is reporting today that Comedian Heather McDonald, the former “Chelsea Lately” star, was headlining a sold-out show in Tempe, Arizona, when she collapsed on stage during her second joke.

Comedian Heather McDonald fell hard during a show in Tempe, Arizona, but it was no joke ... it was a medical emergency. Eyewitnesses tell TMZ ... the former “Chelsea Lately” star was headlining the sold-out show, when she delivered her second joke ... “I’m vaxxed, double vaxxed, boosted ... and flu shot and shingle shot and haven’t gotten COVID and Jesus loves me most.”

As soon as she delivered the joke, she just collapsed and hit her head on the floor. Everyone thought at first it was all part of the act, but it was not. She was conscious, but clearly, all was not well. An EMT and a nurse happened to be in the audience ... they rushed up on stage to provide first aid.

The 911 call came in as a seizure, but no one really knows yet. An ambulance came and paramedics tended to Heather. (Full story.)

Rafael Silva is a television presenter for Jornal das 7/TV Alterosa in Brazil. The COVID Blog reports:

He is also the consummate vaxx and mask zealot, almost to the point of insanity. Mr. Silva received his first injection on July 30. It's unclear which brand he received. However it is clear that it doesn't matter what brand it is. The caption says everything you need to know about his loyalty to big pharma.

"I don't really know how to explain what I felt. I cried, I cried a lot of joy for having the possibility of being vaccinated. At the same time a feeling of sadness for more than 550 thousand people who didn't have that chance. Take care, keep wearing a mask. Long live the Vaccine."

Mr. Silva, 36, received his second injection on August 28. He thanked God "for the opportunity."

He received his booster shot on December 28. The caption translation is as follows:

“Long live the third dose. I’m sorry for the people who didn’t have that opportunity. Vaccines save lives.”

Mr. Silva was in mid-sentence during a live broadcast on January 3, when he suddenly lost consciousness and collapsed to the floor. The station cut the footage right before the very-loud thud when Mr. Silva struck the floor. It was reported that he was in stable condition later that day.

Brazilian online newspaper Metrópoles reported that Mr. Silva was taken to Humanitas Hospital. But he suffered five more cardiac arrests in the ambulance. Mr. Silva has since locked his Twitter account so only verified followers can see his Tweets. There are no further updates. (Full article.)
