

(Updated) Is Yulia Navalny the New Opposition Backed by the West?

Description

- 1) Munich security conference opens the day after Navalny's death
- 2) Yulia Navalny happens to be at the the conference as she was invited in advance
- 3) She holds a speech, also prepared in advance, now boosted by her husband's death
- 4) She is known to have a new boyfriend and is visibly not upset
- 5) She is paraded around like a hero
- 6) She even gets a kiss from Nancy Pelosi

That's exactly what the west needs right now, in terms of media.

All the events make sense now, she's the new opposition.

This is the same wife, a few hours later, full makeover, Madison Avenue style.

So, turning Navalny's wife into the new opposition in exile in two days, while she was "accidentally" at the conference, is the west's playbook.

NOTE: She is still meeting people in Europe, she did not go back to be with her family!

She did not take the time to mourn.

In case you wonder how you can exchange the most popular opposition leader for his wife without losing support?

Simple, Navalny had support below 1% ... so you can put any random person in his place and endorse him.

Obviously the new plan is now shaping up. The gloves are off. "Putin is a murderer. War is now the only option!" The girls are manning the command posts. The propaganda machine is running on all cylinders.